Imagine you are driving a London bus, and it is a busy day. A man with a beard and a red costume gets on at the first stop, followed by a lady with incredibly long hair. She tells you she's been trapped in a castle for years. Next, a boy who can fly jumps on; he has a small green cap on with a feather in. The bus travels a further 3 miles. At the next stop, a lady with 101 dogs tries to get on, but the driver stops her - you can only bring 2 dogs on this bus. She lets 99 run home on their own. After another few stop, 3 lazy girls, a sleepy baby, a man with a red cape and two ladies with crowns get on and ask the driver for exclusive seats. One of them brings a small baby elephant on - this is okay, there are no rules against elephants. Next, Paul and his sister Jane get on, and Frankie get off. Finally, the bus arrives at the station and all but one of the bus riders get off. What is the name of the bus rider still on the bus?

Which broom should she take? Which tactic should she use - witches are always thinking about which tactic to use - it's what witches do. Whichever one she chose would definitely decide which direction the race may take.

You enter an old, creepy looking mansion in the dead of night - although why you would want to do this, nobody knows. You have a rucksack containing a broken torch, a match, a piece of cheese, a bent fork and a stuffed teddy bear with no eye. Under one shoulder, you are carrying a candle, an antique oil lamp, a brand new weather proof oil lamp. Behind you, you are pulling along an oil heater. It is freezing cold in the mansion, and pitch black. What do you light first and explain why?
